Grug, the brother of the original lead character, Rug, is now an adult, is married to Lunk, and has a child named Grug Jr. Grug is now a construction worker who lives on a building site. His small stature has caused him to fall behind in work, so he is called in to help to fix a gutter for a new area of land. A gang of thieves steal the evidence of the family's past, causing them to lose their house and possessions, and for the locals to blame them for the crime. When their car crashes, they find themselves homeless, and live with other homeless people. Vuk gives Grug a letter for his wife, promising that he and his family will be back for them when their situation improves. Back at the clan's camp, Lunk is getting ready to leave for work. Grug convinces her to let him and his family come along, saying they need their help to make repairs on their car, and offer to give them some pocket money for lunch.
